Have you heard the buzz?

Cherry Hills Land Preserve is championing our community's small but mighty members, the bees!

Announcing the 2021 Bee Project:

Some of Cherry Hills Village (CHV) smallest residents are also some of its most essential and unfortunately some of the most at risk. Cherry Hills Land Preserve (CHLP) is partnering with People and Pollinators Action Network, University of Denver, and other like-minded organizations on a pilot study to collect, collate, and ultimately share the results of actions, both large and small, across the community. We will be monitoring both public and private land to realize the overall health and population numbers of native bee species with the goal of increasing the population over time.

This initial work is part of 10+ year initiative that will put CHV at the forefront of efforts to create and protect pollinator's paradises in the communities within the Greater Denver Metro Area, the Front Range, and beyond.

Why Bees?

Did you know there are over 900+ native, non-honey, bee species in Colorado alone? Bees are a key indicator species and these hidden helpers help us assess the overall health of our ecosystem. Think of them as akin to the canary in the mine—except when the buzzing stops it doesn't matter if you make it to the open air—where the bees go our ecosystem follows.

Without pollinators, it's not just honey that will be in short supply it's not even just the local vegetation and landscapes that would be at risk. These are not small stakes. If the bees go, a vital and irreplaceable link in our food supply would be irrevocably lost.

We, as a community, have an opportunity to make changes, small and large, during the 2021 Bee Project to contribute to a baseline study sponsored by CHLP. The Bee Project will positively benefit the CHV ecosystem that supports and sustains us all. The data and results that this study will yield are set to serve as an example to other communities across Colorado, the West, the US, and beyond as they look to create a pollinators paradise of their own.

Collaborating with researchers, students and the community, we will track the bee population as we work collectively to increase the available habitat and food resources in the CHV community. The results of this study will also offer a roadmap for other communities for demonstrable results in stabilizing, restoring, and protecting native pollinator populations and the ecosystems they support.

The land we live on is the backdrop for our lives and for many of us the open spaces and sprawling expanses of CHV are a large part of why we choose to live here. This land is important, and bees are essential if we are to preserve and protect this landscape we hold so dear.

Like a beehive, we're all in this together! Any contribution over the course of this study and beyond is a contribution to the whole. We look forward to working with all levels of contributors, volunteers and donors. It will take a village to save the bees. We are proud that the village in question is ours.

The CHLP Bee Project & Baseline Study

CHLP is committed to providing, protecting, and restoring native habitats and food sources that are essential for the survival of these essential, and often unseen, workers.

Beginning with this initial study, the goal of CHVLP is to raise funds, awareness, and community involvement in initiatives (be they small-scale or property-wide) that will benefit the bee community (and in turn, the greater Cherry Hills Village community as well).

ARAPAHOE VOTES

Voting Tips and Important Information for the 2020 General Election

Voting by Mail: All currently registered voters in Colorado will receive a ballot by mail beginning Oct. 9. Vote the ballot, sign the return envelope, affix postage and place the ballot in the mail. Please allow 8-10 days for delivery and remember to sign the envelope!

Dropping Off Ballots: Voters may drop off a voted ballot at any of 32 secure Ballot Drop Boxes 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Convenient locations can be found at arapahoevotes.com/ballot-drop-locations. Boxes are emptied daily by bipartisan teams and monitored 24/7 by security cameras.

Voters may also drop off a ballot with no waiting at any VSPC during hours of operation (below).

Replacement Ballots: Voters who have not received a ballot by mail may request a replacement by calling the Elections Division at 303-795-4511 and making a curbside ballot pickup appointment (see details below) or having the replacement mailed before Oct. 26. Between Oct. 19 and Nov. 3 voters may also come to a VSPC and request a take-home ballot. This process voids the original mailed ballot, ensuring no elector may vote twice.

Voter Service and Polling Centers (VSPCs): Arapahoe County residents can register or update voter registration, vote in person, get a replacement ballot, drop off a ballot, or use accessible voting equipment at any of our 29 VSPCs. Language interpretation services are also available.

Find your nearest location at: arapahoevotes.com/voter-service-polling-centers.

12 Days of Voting: Avoid Election Day lines and vote in person or drop your voted ballot at one of our 29 VSPCs beginning Oct. 19.

- Phase 1 VSPCs: Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. from Oct. 19-Nov. 3
- Phase 2 VSPCS: Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. from Oct. 30-Nov. 3
Extended Hours: Saturday, Oct. 31 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Tuesday, Nov. 3 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.*

Curbside Ballot Pickup: Five VSPCs in Aurora, Littleton, Byers and Centennial will offer replacement ballots via appointments for Curbside Ballot Pickup. Beginning Oct. 19, voters may call 303-795-4511 to schedule a day, date and time to pick up their replacement ballot in a designated parking space without leaving their vehicle. Voters must bring their ID and may only pick up their own ballot.

Track Your Ballot: Voters can use BallotTrack to check their ballot's status online and sign up to receive text, email or phone messages when it's been mailed to them and received by Arapahoe County Elections: arapahoevotes.com/ballot-track.

Healthy Voting Guidelines: To keep voters and our election judges safe, we strongly encourage voters to vote using their mail ballot and return it in a Ballot Drop Box, at a VSPC or by mail. However, VSPCs follow several protocols to ensure voters can safely cast a ballot including sanitizing voting equipment between uses, social distancing, and making hand sanitizer and facial coverings readily available.

Be safe. Be confident. Be heard.

THANK YOU FOR THE MEMORIES!

We have all passed the house on East Bellevue Avenue with the gargoyles, lovingly referred to as the “gargoyle” house. After 18 years of dressing the statues in festive outfits every month, former owner Yanita Rowan, has moved out of the City. But, for now, the gargoyles remain on their perch.

Who We Are

CHLP was founded in 2005 as a 501(c) (3) non-profit by a group of Village locals who recognized the extraordinary gifts of our community's natural open lands and united in a desire to protect and preserve them.

We're passionate about where we live and how the natural splendor of both public and private lands in CHV connects its residents in a way that transcends geography. We believe in room to roam, and that CHV thrives when conservation and community meet.

Welcome to the CHLP 2021 Bee Project—Let's show the world what our village can do!

MAYOR'S REPORT

As reported elsewhere in this issue there are no contested offices or ballot questions this year in our Village. But it is still appropriate to reflect on accomplishments of the last two years. Some highlights include:

City Council Live Meetings Live Stream and Video Recordings. On December 11, 2019, fortuitously in time to comply with state COVID-19 Stay-at-Home and Safer-at-Home Public Health Orders, the Village began live-streaming and video recording Council meetings. Last month live-streaming and recording was extended to include Council study sessions. Past meetings and study sessions can be viewed on the Village website by clicking the Agendas, Videos & Minutes button on the home page.

Public Safety. Forty-five percent of our General Fund is dedicated to public safety. The year-end public-safety statistics for 2019 were good news for the Village. The number of crimes decreased 39%, while the number of arrests fell 10%. The number of traffic accidents fell 15%, although the number of traffic tickets remained stable. Notable arrests included the apprehension of five suspects connected with a random home invasion and injury to Officer Cory Sack. The Village increased public safety transparency with the LexisNexis Community Crime Map posted on the Village Website. Police Chief Michelle Tovrea has assembled an outstanding department committed to assuring that the Village remains one of Colorado's safest suburban communities.

Glenmoor/Bellevue Traffic Signal. Our Village, Greenwood Village, Glenmoor County Club, and Glenmoor Homeowner's Association partnered to install a new $500,000 traffic signal at the intersection of Glenmoor Drive/ Steele Street and Bellevue Avenue. Our Village funded 25% of the cost, Greenwood Village 50% and Glenmoor Country Club and Glenmoor HOA 25%. The new signal will improve safety and accessibility at an intersection that has experienced several severe accidents.

Bellevue Medians Improvements.

Greenwood Village budgeted and appropriated about $2 million to pay for improvements to ten Bellevue Avenue medians adjacent to Cherry Hills Village. Our Village will contribute up to $60,000 annually for the next five years to defray irrigation and maintenance costs for the new low-water plants.

John Meade Park. The Village completed a $3.4 million reconstruction of John Meade Park. Arapahoe County, through the Open Space and Trails Advisory Board grant program, contributed $500,000. The old fire station was demolished, the ponds dredged, and shelters and walks constructed. John Meade Park now takes its place alongside the City Hall and the Joint Public Safety Facility completing the construction of the Village Center Campus envisioned in 2007 by the Village's Citizen's City Center Committee (CCCC).

High Line Canal Underpass. The Village, the City and County of Denver, Arapahoe County, the Colorado Department of Transportation, and the High Line Canal Conservancy partnered to complete this $7 million project for underpasses at Hampden and Colorado Boulevard creating a safe route to walk, run, and cycle the High Line Canal trail north from our Village. The Village received grant assistance from Arapahoe County to extend the High Line Canal trail from its existing location north of Hampden to the new underpass.

Quincy Avenue Utility Lines. Council commenced the undergrounding of utility lines along Quincy Avenue, from Happy Canyon Road to Holly Street. This project implements the recommendation of the 2015 Citizens Utility Line Undergrounding Committee, which prioritized Quincy Avenue for this work. Contracts have been signed and the project will be completed in 2021. Money from the improvements comes from a monthly fee paid by Xcel customers.

Sanitary Sewer Consolidation.

The Village Master Plan identifies as a priority the consolidation and eventual transfer of City-owned sewer districts. In 2014 the Village imposed a fee increase for residents in City-owned districts and developed a plan to repair and rehabilitate Village-owned sewer systems. The first phase of the repair work will start in Districts 1 and 2 in 2020 and 2021. Residents who will be affected will receive more information as construction plans and timelines are completed.

Development Code Modernization.

Council approved a reorganization of Chapters 16, 17, 19 and 20 of the Village Municipal Code. These Chapters regulate improvements to real property, including signs, lighting, fences, walls, wireless communication, setbacks, parking, height restrictions and floor area ratios. These sections of the Code are now organized in an intuitive, consistent, and logical order; use consistent vocabulary and definitions, and streamlined application and review procedures. These Code chapters are key to preserving and enhancing the semi-rural character of the Village.

Renaming Swastika Acres. When incorporated in 1945 Cherry Hills Village acquired a subdivision that had been named "Swastika Acres" in 1908. At that time the symbol was one of prosperity and good luck, used by indigenous North American tribes and the Hindu and Buddhist religions. Later co-opted by the German Nazi Party after World War I, the swastika became a symbol of anti-Semitism. The name "Swastika Acres" has now been expunged from County real estate records.

Mayor Mondays. I continue to hold regular Mayor Monday office hours from 9 to 11 a.m., and we can use the outdoor patio weather permitting. If you would prefer to email or call you can reach me at rstewart@cherryhillsvillage.com or 303-607-3688.

WINTER WATERING:

SAVE OUR PLANTS

By Carol Gilmore, Colorado Master Gardener

Colorado has had some crazy weather over the last year and the plants in our landscapes have suffered. First, there was the 50 degree temperature drop last October followed by an extremely dry winter. Then there was another large temperature drop in April which killed a lot of buds just coming out on the trees and some new leaf growth. That further stressed the trees and other plants. This summer has been close to record hot temperatures with a record number of 90 degree days and a severe drought in most of the state. The large temperature drop in the second week of September did further damage to plants.

Many trees in our landscapes are suffering from these stressors and could use some extra tender treatment to nurse them through these drought stricken times.

Winter watering should be done every winter, but especially with the severe weather we have been experiencing over the last year. During fall and winter, after your sprinkler systems have been shut down, you should water your landscape during extended dry periods, when the temperature is above 40 degrees F and there is no snow cover. Water plants early in the day to allow it to soak in and check to make sure that it doesn't run off. Water should reach a depth of twelve inches. Trees and shrubs should be mulched to preserve moisture and prevent drying out.

Winter watering should be done with a sprinkler, a soaker hose or a deep-root needle or fork. A needle should be inserted to a depth of approximately eight inches. It should be placed near the drip line in one foot increments with a timing of one minute at each site using a grid pattern inside and outside of that drip line. Whatever method of watering you use, water should soak into the soil to a depth of approximately 12 inches for trees. Watering should be done halfway to the trunk from the edge of the branches and then two to three times that distance out from the edge of the branches.

Watering recommendations suggest watering at least three times during September and one to two times a month from October to March, depending on how much precipitation is received. Younger trees and evergreens require more water. On average, trees need 10 gallons of water per diameter inch of trunk per month in the winter.

Newly planted trees, shrubs, perennials and grasses need the extra water over winter to help them become established and grow the root systems they need to survive. Newly planted lawns also require extra winter watering, as do perennials. Mulch will help the soil retain moisture. Mulch should be applied to a depth of approximately three to four inches. Mulch around trees should extend two to four feet out from the trunk or to the drip line. Mulch should be kept away from the trunk of the tree.

Town of Parker, which is entitled for roughly 3,600 new residential units. When not at work, Paul enjoys spending time with his wife and young children anywhere that isn't inside.

UNDERGROUNDING UTILITIES

City Council has approved an undergrounding project for the utility lines on the north side of Quincy Avenue between Holly Street and Happy Canyon Road. This project is being funded through the City's 1% fund with Xcel Energy (a fund maintained by Xcel based on 1% of the total energy bills paid by all Cherry Hills Village residents). These funds can only be utilized for the poles and lines within City owned rights-of-way and not for lines serving private residences. The undergrounding will also include other utilities that utilize these poles such as Comcast and CenturyLink. Once the main utility lines have been buried there may be smaller poles that are not removed as several residents receive power, phone and cable to the residence using above ground lines. Those residents have the choice of paying to underground their service lines or may elect to keep above ground services.

There will be minimal disruptions to traffic as a majority of the work will take place outside of the paved portion of Quincy Avenue. If you have any questions or concerns about the project, please contact the Public Works Department for further information at (303) 783-2744. The project is expected to take up to 4 months to complete as the utility providers will need to coordinate their work with Xcel since they cannot work in the project area at the same time.

GROWING UP IN CHERRY HILLS VILLAGE

By Klasina Vander Werf

In the August issue of the Village Crier, Nancy Davison Wyman related a few memories of growing up in Cherry Hills Village. She asked other second generation Villagers—people who grew up in the Village who have returned to raise their own children—to submit their own childhood memories and stories. So, we thought this was a good time to run a story that first appeared in the November/December 2006 issue of the Crier. CHV is 75 years old this year. Many of the following stories are from the years before incorporation. Many of the people featured in the following story are no longer alive—but, lucky for us, their memories live on.

Imagine this: your parents have just moved out of metro Denver to the far ends of the earth—miles away from civilization, miles from your old friends and your former school. Sure, your parents promised you a horse, but they forgot to mention all the responsibility that goes along with this. They also forgot to mention that there was going to be a small herd of sheep as well—and you are expected to help take care of them. But you learn to put up with all the other stuff, maybe a little begrudgingly, because there is all this great space to play in and this is so much fun.

There are plenty of Villagers around who remember their growing up years in CHV (which speaks volumes for how much they love the area: they've returned to raise their own children here). When they talk about their childhood memories, it isn't unusual for a mischievous smile to come to a few faces. There were responsibilities, sure, but there were also plenty of rough and tumble good times.

The list of what kids gained by growing up around here would have to include learning the responsibilities that go along with caring for animals, drawing on one's own imagination, and the joy that comes from interacting with the natural surroundings. But the stories themselves say this so much better.

Callae Buell Gilman is the Villager who probably has the earliest childhood memories. She was the oldest of Marjorie and Temple Buell's four children. The Buells bought their home from the Alexis Caldwell Foster family who had built the home on the 168 acres they owned at the corner of the intersection of the dirt roads of Hampden and University in 1918. Interestingly, the Foster family moved from their Denver home to what had been their summer retreat, to avoid a flu pandemic that had overtaken Denver.

In 1982, Cynthia Wolf, the last surviving member of the Foster family, wrote a letter to the Crier and also shared some of her memories of life in what has often been described as the area's first mansion. She, her sister and friends played hide seek in the tunnel that went between the main house and the garage, rode the dumb waiter between floors, and had races sliding down the two stairway banisters.

In 1936, when the Buell children moved in, they took over where the Foster kids had left off. Callae remembers riding horses "all over". The stable on Clarkson that was part of the Cherry Hills Club (today the Cherry Hills Country Club) was where the Buells kept their horses. The bridle path around the Club served well enough for a short ride, but if they wanted something longer, the children headed for the road along the High Line Canal or "the Ditch" as it was known in those days.

There were not a lot of children in the area then, so frequently school friends from town would be invited to the Buell home for the weekend. There were often eight children at the dinner table on weekends. "My mother was wonderful," Callae remembers, "we had open house all the time."

The Buell children also grew up with numerous animals. There were usually as many as six dogs of varying breeds around at any one time. The pet that perhaps still has the greatest notoriety was the young deer the Buell children kept. They came by the animal because its mother was killed at the Camp Hale shooting range. Temple Buell had drawn up the ground plans for Camp Hale and was handy when a home was sought for the motherless fawn. Callae remembers how her mother would put a rope and collar on the young deer and lead him around. He was usually kept within the confines of the family's tennis court, though there are many stories to this day, describing the animal's adventures inside the Buell home. "Well," Callie offers with a straight face in response to these tales, "he may have been in the house a couple of times, but stories that he lived indoors are greatly exaggerated!"

Virginia Shafrroth Newton, daughter of Abby Stanton and Morrison Shafrroth—one of three families who purchased acreage at the corner of Bellevue and University in 1927, has similar memories. The property came complete with a Shetland pony and a dog. The Shafrroth family lived in the farmhouse during the spring and fall months. One memory Ginny is particularly fond of involves riding her horse to Graland, where she and her sister Ellen attended school. They got to ride to school on the one day during the week the Hottentot Riding Club met after school. In those days, according to Ginny, Graland students' education often involved spirited historical re-enactments. Because they already had the major props, their horses, Ellen and Ginny got to re-enact jousting during medieval times. Ginny recalls that they drew straws to see who would lose the jousting match. "Poor Ellen drew the short straw and had to fall off her horse," Ginny recalls.

Joanne Little O'Kane, the oldest of the four Little children was 11 when her family moved to their home at the edge of civilization in 1941. Their father, Joe Little, would become Cherry Hills Village's first mayor in 1945. While the Littles didn't have horses, "We had everything else, including pigs, sheep, goats, chickens, turkeys, and steers," Joanne said.

Some of the Little's steers came to them by way of the Denver Stock Show. Joanne, her brother David, and her sister Elizabeth Starbuck remember one in particular they had named Patton—yes, after the general. Today, they point out, because of newer regulations, stock show steers can only be roped once. This wasn't always true. In former times, they were roped repeatedly. This only served to give the wilier steers practice in figuring out how to get their head out of the rope's noose. Patton, apparently, was one of the most accomplished at this sleight of head. On one particular occasion, Patton managed to finagle his way out and through fences on prom night. Joanne recalls chasing after him in her light blue organdy prom dress, pulling herself up over fences and running through cornfields to find the ornery steer. "I finally found him in Englewood. He'd gotten all the way to Logan and Quincy." Despite, or perhaps because of, the bull chasing, Joanne characterizes her growing up years as "wonderful."

Ron Loser, son of Earl and Edith Loser, found no dearth of playmates when his family moved to South University in 1940. On that side of town, the Cherry Hills Club (now the Cherry Hills Country Club) was the favorite playground in winter. "The young boys would build a ski jump on Hole #1 and play ice hockey on the lake on Hole #18 when it froze over. Everything was pretty informal then," he points out.

Ron and his buddies also found their way over to the Frank Kistler property in the summer. The Kistler's owned what is now the Village Club and the acreage that now is Carriage Lane and which served as a vacation retreat for the Kistler family. It was the swimming pool that the Kistlers put in that made it the favorite spot for some of the area children.

The Cherry Hills School also ranks high on the list for providing memories to those kids in the area during the years before incorporation. In addition to sports, the activity that attracted numerous students was band. It was a teacher, Mr. Trustman, "who wanted desperately to have a wonderful band," who encouraged students to take part. Ron played the clarinet. Early yearbook photos show rows of children proudly holding their instruments.

Cherry Hills School teachers also had to put up with the shenanigans of students raised in the great outdoors. Mrs. Rahiser, a teacher who hailed from Texas with a temper to match her fiery red hair, was up to the challenge. Bob Warren remembers how she picked up the snake they had planted in her top desk drawer with the words, "Oh, what a beautiful bull snake. Here, Bob, you can take it outside.' It kind of took the fun out of the prank," he admits.

Bob Warren now lives on the eastern side of the Village, but he grew up on South Lafayette Street. His grandparents were Margaret Dake and Louis Bansbach, both of whom had been purchasing parcels of land in this area as early as the 1890's. Bob's grandfather Louis, had teamed up with a man named C.S. Baker and the two not only farmed their own lands, but those of many other property owners in the area. Of course, the grandchildren got involved in the harvesting. Bob's grandfather would place him in the combine which was pulled behind a tractor. "I'd sit there in the combine with that wheat pouring in on top of me—up to my neck. Then, I'd wiggle out, eat some of it and throw a bunch around."

Of course, some of the games engaged in during those early years are ones the adults were not privy to. Bob Warren and his buddies foreshadowed a cross between the Civil War re-enactment and paint ball crazes of today. During a few summers in the early 1950's, he and his buddies would gather for their own version of the duel. The Yankees would head for Roger Knight, Jr.'s house on Quincy and the Confederates would go to Pat Burnham's on Summit. The Yankees would wear their Cub Scout uniforms, blue shirts with kerchiefs. "The Rebels were always rag-tag," according to Warren. The boys would also carry their bb-guns and actually take aim at each other. "Oh, no. Of course the adults didn't know about it," says Warren. "We'd send out patrols along Little Dry Creek to scout out where the other team was. It was great fun."

Jeff Welborn, former mayor and current resident, grew up on Lynn Road. The Welborn kids raised cows, chickens and horses and were very involved in 4-H. The 4-H club they belonged to was called the "Cherry Hills Busy Bees." As Jeff's mother, "Salty" Welborn, describes it, animals were a large part of her children's growing up years. "They loved animals—it's a part of their souls."

There may have been one animal Jeff would just as soon forget. This was the feisty rooster, Floyd, who jealously guarded the hen house. Jeff and his brothers gathered the eggs by having two of them distract Floyd at the gate to the hen yard while one of them climbed into the hen house through the back window and collected the eggs, trying hard not to break them on the way out.

No story about growing up in CHV would be complete without some mention of the fun that took place in and around the Ditch. Water coursed along the Canal banks during the warm months in those years, and children and adults found all means of transportation to float along on that water. Jeff and his friend "Bud" Davis built a wooden raft that they floated from upstream to Bud's house on Quincy and the High Line.

Bea Taplin, a Village resident who moved here in 1958 and whose children are grown and gone, thinks raising kids in the Village was one of the best parts about their decision to move here. "It was idyllic," she says. "Every child should have a childhood like that."

John Meade Park UPDATE

John Meade Park will be open this month! Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, City Council and the Parks, Trails and Recreation Commission (PTRC) held a short ribbon cutting ceremony to commemorate the park opening. Please check the City's website (www.cherryhillsvillage.com/jmp) and social media pages for a specific opening date. The park contains a new picnic shelter with restrooms and a play area with a saucer swing and hammock, a tree climber, and an observation tower. There are now fishing piers at both ponds, a boardwalk through the wetlands, and 125 new trees that will grow up to provide plenty of shade. On the Alan Hutto Memorial Commons side, there is a concrete performance area, pathways, and terraced grass amphitheater. Now that construction is wrapping up, some finishing touches like interpretive signage are in the works. We are so excited to welcome you back to see all the new improvements!
